

A Brighter World

*But still some men there are,
Who see, with clearer eye,
The same sharp needs of struggling man;
The need for counsel and the steady hand,
To guide the faltering footstep,
And the need for strength to ward
Defection to insidious theory.
Some men there are who guard
Tradition and the heritage;
Who, by example, build
A stronger generation for a brighter world.*

*With such men may our land be filled -
Thank God for men who build.*

Dudley M. Fitzpatrick, 1960